Youth working today helps to build better schools and churches for the future

Taking part in church activities, youth finds church more than just a place to meet friends

Harry Goss, Grant Parsons, and Leon Tolleson act as altar boys each Sunday in their main church service. Below, Billie Jo Wright and Emma Lou Bennett lead their weekly Youth Fellowship in singing.

Leaving the campus early each day, many students work in the community to help out, to prepare to make a living

Nancy Norton works afternoons as a receptionist in a local laundry and pleases customers with her smile.

Working in the community, youth gains experience and relieves shortages

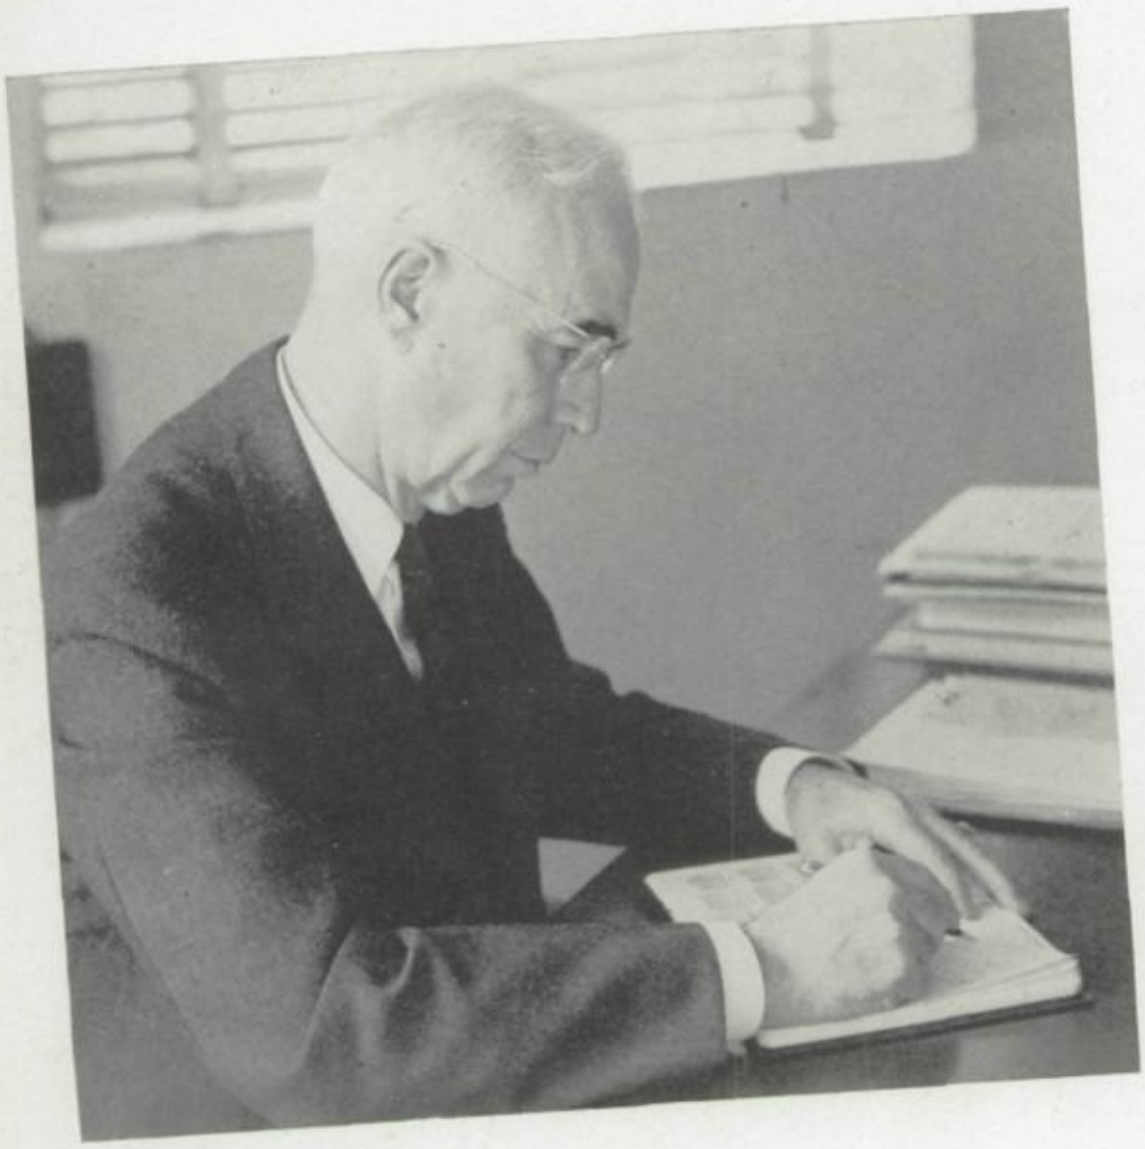
Helping in the community, students take part in welfare projects and learn to face civic problems.

Red Cross work becomes of major importance

At noon many students congregate on the lawn in front of cafeteria (above) and after school in otherwise deserted schoolrooms to work on Red Cross and other service projects, as at right, where are seen Dick Pulis, Nena Bein, Betsy Gritner, Barbara McMullen, and Estelle Spaid.



With three high schools, a technical school, and the Junior College to look after, Mr. Montgomery has much to occupy his thoughts, but he is never too busy to advise with students and faculty members on their common problems. Below, Mr. Montgomery presides at the dedication of the Mustang Corral grill last fall.

Youth needs leaders

The community is interested in youth just as youth is interested in the community. This is evidenced by the $300,000 bond issue voted this spring to add 12 classrooms to the Science Building at a cost of $150,000 and also a $65,000 extension to the cafeteria.

Mr. E. W. Montgomery, Superintendent of the Phoenix Union High Schools and President of Junior College, has done much to help students in all their projects, encouraging their interest in the Mustang Corral, for example, which in itself has been one of the finest morale-builders for North Phoenix.

Preparing 2,000 North High students for their places in the community is the job of Mr. Loyd C. Elliott, principal. Seeing that they have the proper qualifications to fit successfully in the right places is a big job, but one he has fulfilled.

Through his leadership and interest, many students will find a more prosperous future for themselves.

Justice with sympathy is the ideal, which is well exemplified in the actions of Mr. Elliott, principal, who can also take time out, as in the picture with Dean Anderson above, to talk things over with Santa Claus. Come out from behind the bushes, Jim Savage!

He is always ready to listen

Youth requires guidance

Guiding the students of North Phoenix High School in their preparation for good citizenship and leadership in the community are Dr. L. A. Eastburn, Director of Research and Guidance, who aids the students in their selection of curricula that will best equip them for the future; Dr. C. W. Taylor, registrar, who patiently helps the students untangle curriculum problems and work out adequate and convenient schedules; Mr. A. F. Olney, Curriculum Coordinator, who supervises the selection and purchase of text books for both Phoenix Union High Schools and promotes closer union between the students of the two schools through oratorical contests and other intra-school activities; and Mrs. Jean Hansen, home counselor, who acts as a link between the school and the community.

Business means efficiency

The business office is the center of many school activities. Mr. Henry Lowe, business manager, and Mrs. Fara Darland have many duties to perform for both students and community.

Mrs. Mildred Hill of the principal's office works industriously in answering questions of parents and students alike. Mrs. Hill's duties consist of recording honor court reports, issuing the bulletin, and doing secretarial duties.

Guidance points the way

Efficiency is the key note in the registrar's office at North High. Work here begins before first period, and the staff is kept busy all day, recording tardies and absences of the students. It is also the job of Mrs. Mary Westby and Miss Patricia Campbell to decide what symbols students shall receive on excuses for absences from classes.

Records of each student are kept from enrolment until graduation and permanent records are kept on file for future reference after graduation.

The community makes the school

Well-trained and well-educated young people will be the leaders and builders of this community in a short time. They are receiving this necessary training and education now because of a group of far-sighted members of the community who realize the importance of such training and are doing so much toward providing it for them.

An efficient and imaginative Board of Education heads the smoothly-running Phoenix high school system, which is an essential part of the community today and will become even more important in the community tomorrow.

This Board, which heads all of Phoenix' secondary schools, North Phoenix High School, Phoenix Union High School, Phoenix Technical School, and Carver High School, as well as Phoenix Junior College, consists of citizens willing to plan for the future, to devote their time and energy to the best interests of the young people of their district.

They worked hard to make our future bright

The outstanding project of the year in student government was the continuing drive for the Mustang Corral for which over $3,000 was raised. The grill has made the corral more than just a plot of land ornamented by a few trees and shrubs. It is a picnic ground to be proud of.

The money raised in this year's campaign furnished tables and benches in front of the grill. Widtsoe Shumway, student body president, went far in completing the plans for the corral which were begun last year.

Discussing student body plans, in the upper picture are Fred Steiner, student body vice-president; Melba Edgin, secretary-treasurer; and Widtsoe Shumway, president. In the lower picture is the Memorial Committee, which includes Grammar, Turner, Benson, Edgin, and Shumway.

We learn how to govern ourselves

The honor court, a student elected body, under the sponsorship of Miss Ruth M. Adams, deals with the students who are accused of breaking laws of school conduct. This court is composed of six judges, of which three are seniors, two juniors, and one sophomore, with a bailiff and secretary receiving their offices by appointment.

A case is presented with both sides given to the judges who read the offense to the student accused. After the case is read, the student is asked if he is guilty or not guilty. If guilt is denied, the case is investigated with the teacher; then the court casts a vote to decide the problem in question.

The Executive Board

Most students will agree that this year's executive department was a good one, for it has gone far towards making this year a memorable one for all concerned. They have led the students to bigger and better things and have truly been an example to be proud of.

They are setting an example for future students, and what is more important than learning the meaning of cooperation and leadership? It is hoped that in the world of tomorrow they will go far, and that they will do as much towards the improvement of its conditions as they have in bettering ours.

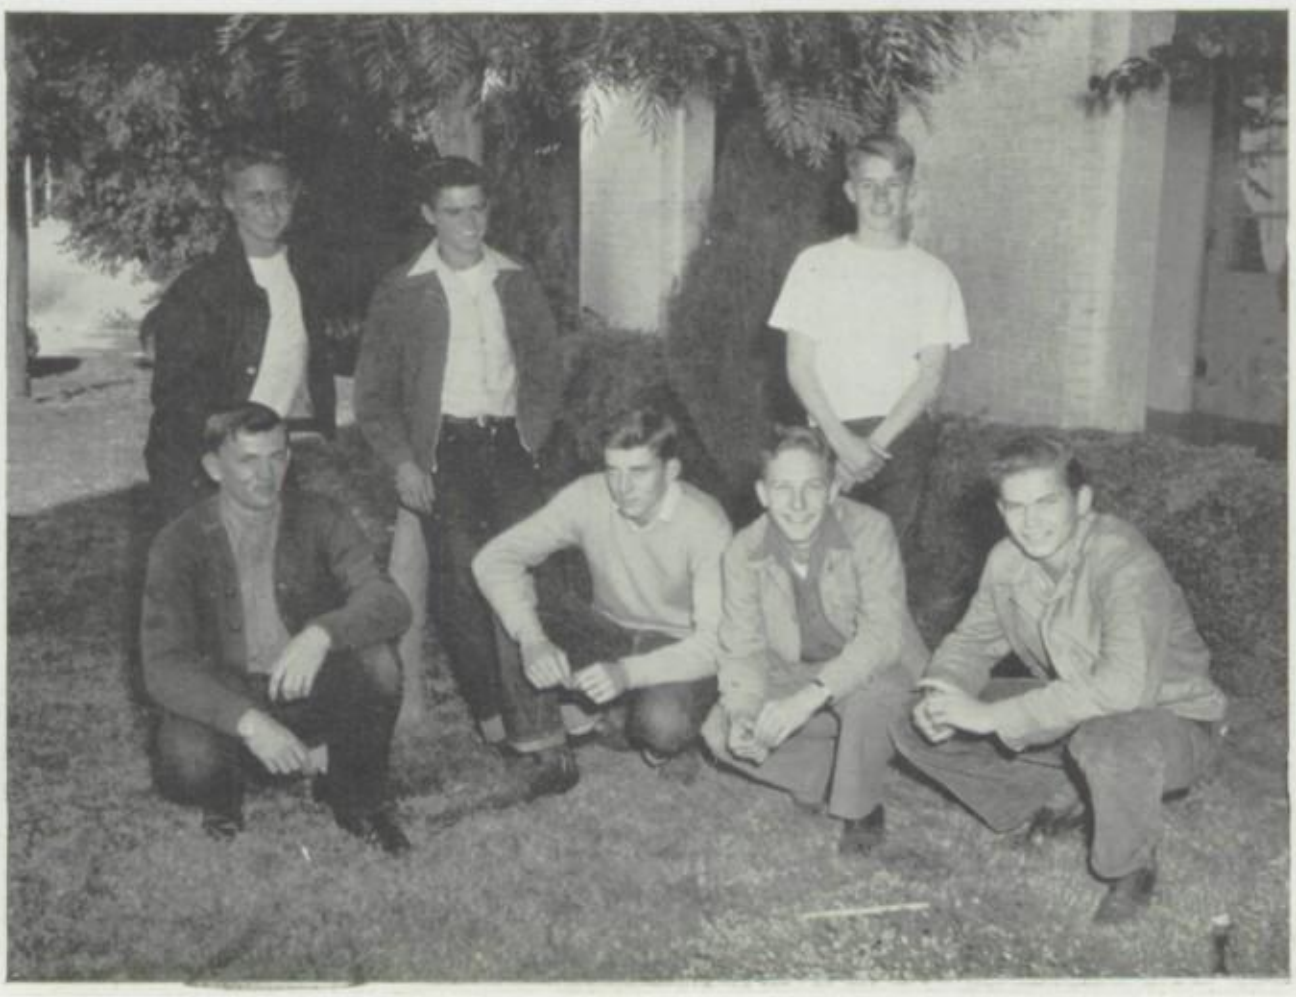
Conferring on business pertaining to the Boys' Alliance are Kay A. Driggs and Dean Anderson, the president and the adviser of the organization.

The boys work together

The aim of the Boys' Alliance is to promote good fellowship among the boys of the school.

Some of their undertakings this year were giving two victory stamp stomps, helping the Girls' League purchase a school juke box, selling Christmas cards, and sending copies of G. I. Bill of Rights to Mustangs in the service.

The executive board of the Boys' Alliance is composed of the president, Kay Allan Driggs; vice-president, Merlin Abbott; secretary-treasurer, Ray Griswold; publicity chairman, Karl Turner; social chairman, Tom Barrett, and service chairman, Bill Finch. The legislative body or the Mustang Congress is made up of representatives from each home room. Faculty adviser to the organization is Dean Anderson.



The Executive Board of the Boys' Alliance poses for its picture: standing, Griswold, Abbott, Reddic; squatting, Driggs, Finch, Stein, and Turner.

They keep things tidy

Throughout the year the Boys' Alliance carries on campaigns to clean up the campus and stop destructiveness among the students.

Teachers' teas, welcoming parties for freshmen, vaudevilles, Blue and Silver Balls—yes, the Girls' League sponsors all of these activities.

Each year such events play a large part in the school program; also they provide the Girls' League with finances with which to carry on many outside activities. The Crippled Children at Tucson benefited greatly this year under the leadership of Jean Pearson, president of the League.

Also North High girls benefited to a great extent through this worthy organization, which becomes more steadfast each year. Not only is their outside work to be commended, but their school projects such as our Blue and Silver Ball, which gives girls their "once-a-year" chance to ask a boy dancing.

Arizony was the theme

Filled with cowboys, senoritas, old maids, dudes, tramps, and gamblers, the second annual Girls' League vaudeville show, "Arizona," was staged in a galloping fashion for a record breaking audience, from which $500 was earned for the National Children's Fund of the Red Cross. Eastern belles Jeanne Wright and Jean Tonneman are enthralled by the serenading of cow-poke Kibby Barwick, top left, while Nancy Beaman and Annette Sheldon bemoan the fact that "Arizona Never Furnished Us A Man," top right. "That's enough," cautions Bowman Russell as Barney Shiminowsky pours out his "licker" at the Milk Bar, center left. Senoritas, cow girls, farmers' daughters, and a cowboy gather for a big sing, center right. "Gotcha, ya thievin' varmit!" exclaims big, bold sheriff Raymond Williams while poor "little" Kibby Barwick cringes in mortal fear, lower left. Camille King and Lael Muelbach furnish the onlookers with a bit of accordian music, lower right.

In one of the main acts of the vaudeville show presented by the Girls' League: Mabel Combs serenades for the benefit of (seated on floor) Jeanne Chartrand, Dolores Burlbaugh, Shirley Schmitz, and Virginia Stevens, while Jerry Davich and Jeanne Wright look on.

Mix fun and hard work

The Girls' League has been responsible for the successful operation of many campus activities, under the direction of Jean Pearson, president; Gloria Aberwald, vice-president; Pauline Hill, secretary; June Izard, treasurer; Alice Melby, senior representative; Robbie Lee Bland, junior representative; Donna Johnson, sophomore representative; and Sallie Seebree, freshman representative.

The League has charge of the Costume Room, this year under the direction of Willie Williams, the Campus Shop for girls who are not able to obtain certain pieces of clothing, and the Freshman Mixer for the new students at North High. In the Spring they present the Big-Little Sister parties for prospective North High students

This year the League in cooperation with the Boys' Alliance purchased a juke box to be used at such events as the Co-ed Dance.

The girls are always eager to get behind all the service drives, too.

Service is their keyword

Under the chairmanship of Iris Chester, this year the service committee struggled with wrapping clothing, making bed slippers for the Red Cross, delivering baskets to the needy, and helped pack boxes for the Russian War Relief. A $100 bond was given to the Mustang Corral Drive as the League's donation. Miss Howatt was faculty adviser.

When help shortage was so acute in the cafeteria at the beginning of the school year, the Girls' League officers filled in by serving at the lunch hour.

Working before the noon hour rush, the staff of the cafeteria are (top, left) Skipper, Lockwood, Lowry, Collie, Bales, and (top, right) Cunningham, Barnes, Elliott, Hopkins, and Williams. Mrs. Ruth Smith (center, left) is shown directing Mr. H. B. Russell as he prepares meat. Busy with their jobs (center, right) are gardener Mr. G. A. Cottrell and foreman Mr. William Butler, while oblivious to the camera are (lower, left) Butler, Wallace, Speake, Loucher, and Cottrell. Members of the maintenance staff (lower, right) are (left to right) Wallace, Hall, Loucher, Fiehle, Mitchell, Brown, Forres, Butler, Hopkins, Speake, and Cottrell.

Teachers are not always the classroom slave-drivers that some students think. They enjoy a good time as much as the students. Faculty members' routines of hard work are varied by the numerous teas given during the year in the home-making dining room and give teachers an opportunity to discuss the trials and sometimes the joys involved by their profession.

Avec beaucoup de souvenirs très heureux —
Lt Cloyd

Teachers were students

The teacher is an important factor in the preparation of youth for their participation in community life. In recognition of this was the formation of the "Future Teachers Club," a new organization under the sponsorship of Mrs. Lu Rhodes Cloyd. Members of this club are those students who are planning to make teaching their vocation.

The object of the organization is to begin an early preparation of those students for their chosen field of work. There are many things concerning the basic fundamentals of teaching and dealing with other people that these students must learn if they are to be successful in their future.

Six new teachers this year

Six new teachers were added to the North High School faculty this year after several faculty members left to enter the armed forces. They adjusted easily to the school system and with the other teachers helped to improve student-teacher cooperation and assisted in student community projects, through their homerooms.

Through their homerooms, they have contributed to the various community projects. By such activities, they have found their place with the students and faculty of North Phoenix High School, as well as making worthy contributions to community life.

The six new teachers are (top, left) Mrs. Bettse Phelps, physical education; Miss Catherine Eastburn, mathematics and public speaking; Mr. Herbert Drinkwater, English; Mr. Henry Schmidt, mathematics; and Mr. C. O. Stephens, commercial. Gathered to solve the $64 question are (top, right) Mr. Harold Williams, Mr. W. J. Wooden, and Mr. Thomas Inman, mathematics department. (Lower left) consulting with Mrs. Winifred Powers, history teacher, are students Colleen Lewallen and Agapie Poulis. Miss Ruth Adams, Miss Winona Montgomery, and Miss Ellen Nitzkowski, history teachers, are shown enjoying their conversation on the campus (lower, right).

They play their part

Our teachers play a big part in community life in Phoenix. Mr. Fred Draper is the guiding hand to all agriculture students, running a production farm that sells food to the community.

Mr. F. V. Brown has given the students great pleasure with his organization of hay-rack rides and has taken prominent part in the community square dances. Miss Ruth Contris helps out at the servicemen's center.

All teachers are giving their time and energy to the youth of our community to make them better citizens for the future.

Science is the key to the future

Science will play an important part in the future; therefore it is important that youth be taught the fundamentals that science will play in everyday life. Physiography and general science are the basic background for the more advanced sciences of biology, chemistry, and physics.

Study of natural science and the knowledge of biological data, information about matter and its fundamental principles and the explanation of everyday happenings all are offered to those persons wishing to avail themselves of the why's and how's of everyday life.

The teachers of recent years know how much the future will depend on the students. Therefore they put every effort into teaching students who really try to larn.

Teachers relax, too, and the grill is good for it. The teachers have shown a big interest in the Mustang Corral this year. The various homeroom parties at the grill have given as much pleasure to the sponsors as the students.

The planning, the plotting, and actual carrying out of the parties, afford a much deserved and very welcome lift in the day's affairs.

They work together

The Classroom Teachers' Association gives the teachers an opportunity to cooperate in achieving professional objectives. Officers for first semester were Vera Boyington, president; James Carter, vice-president; Joe McKinney, treasurer; and Harold Williams, secretary. Second semester officers are James Carter, president; Harold Williams, vice-president; Henry Schmidt, treasurer; Genevieve Carlton, secretary.

The activities of the Association are not all work, however. Several times during the year, they get together for parties and picnics. Typical was the pot luck party held at the grill. Teachers from both high schools, the office staff, and their families attended.

During the legislative session, teachers worked hard, although unsuccessfully, to achieve their statewide program, which included revisions in the retirement law and enactment of a continuing contract law.

Seniors are nearest to the future and the community

Although many of this year's senior class have already enlisted in the service of their country, the Class of '45 carried on, serving the school and their community to the best of their ability to further the coming of peace.

President Bill Oxley, vice-president Wayne Reinhardt, and secretary-treasurer Bill Bales mixed laughter with labor in providing various activities.

Sponsoring a dance after a football game, taking half-credit for the success of the play and the prom, and leading the school in the drive for weeding of the Mustang Corral, these students have proved their ability to go out and become America's engineers, scientists, lawyers, doctors, the true leaders in their community.

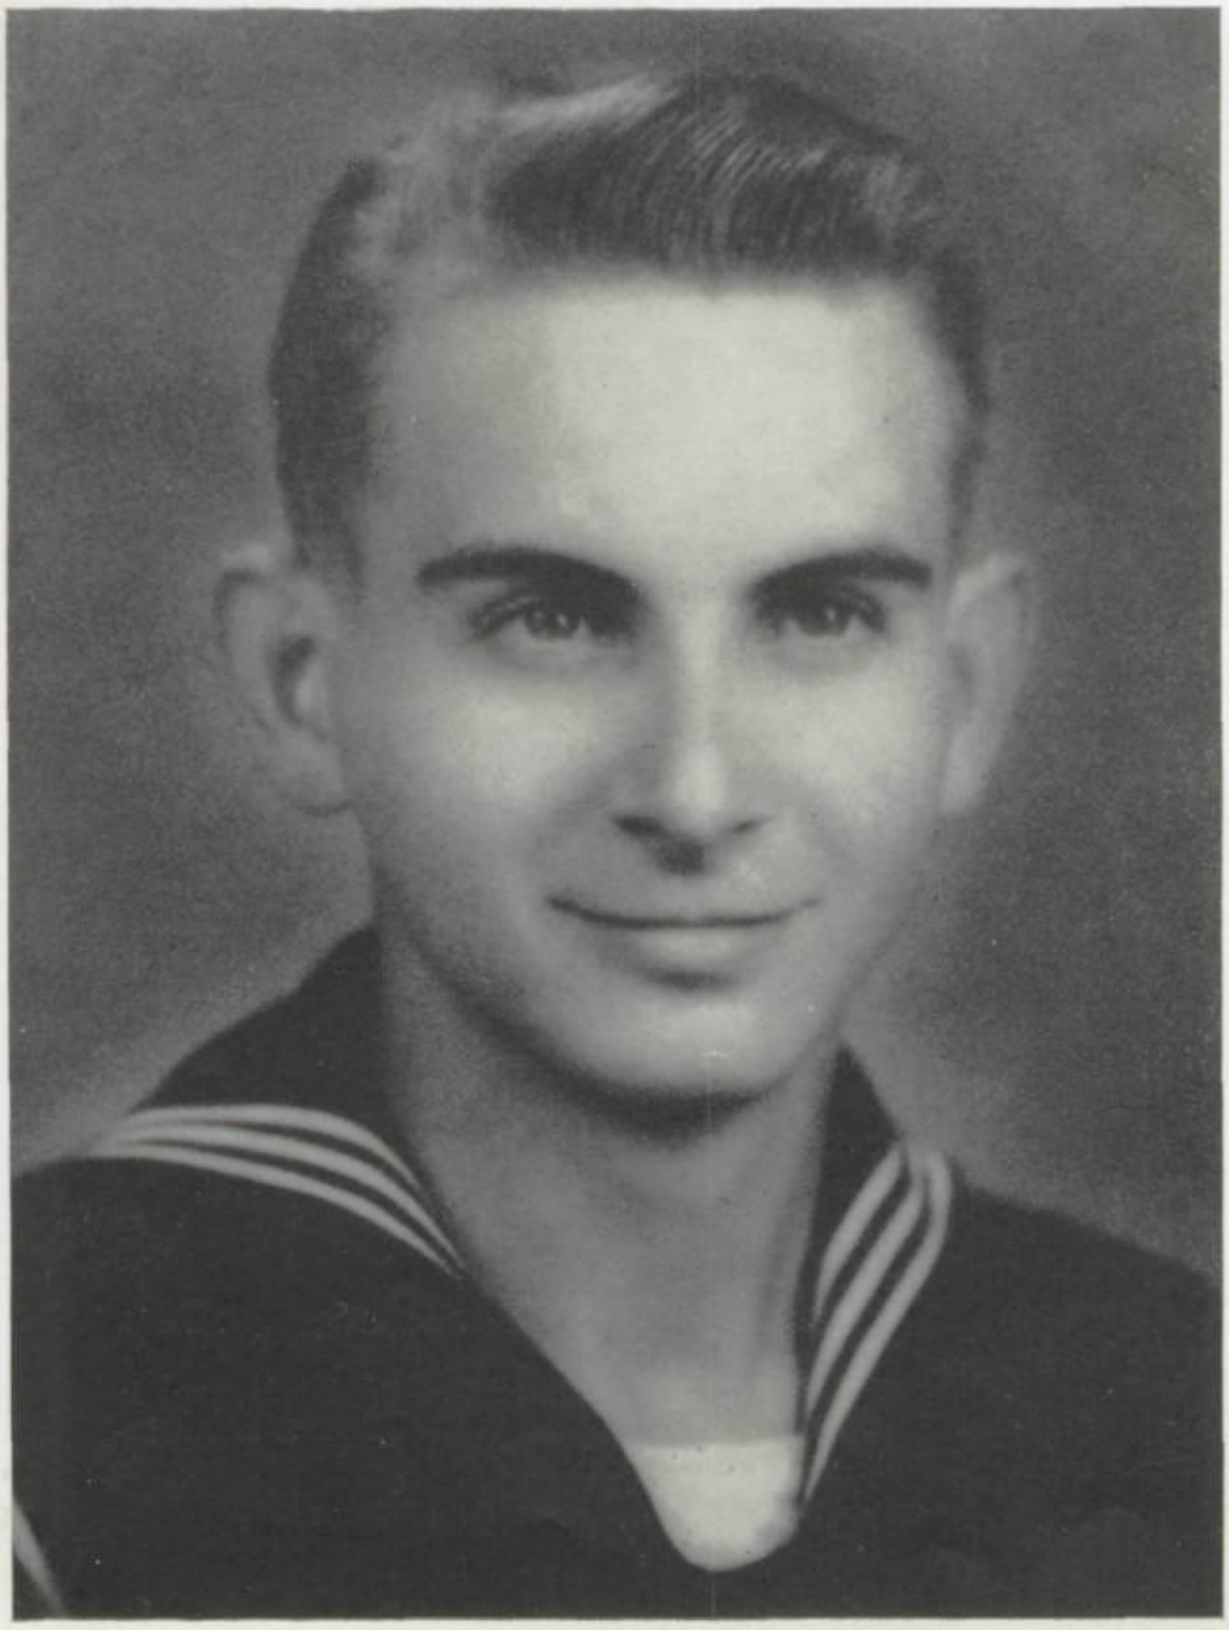
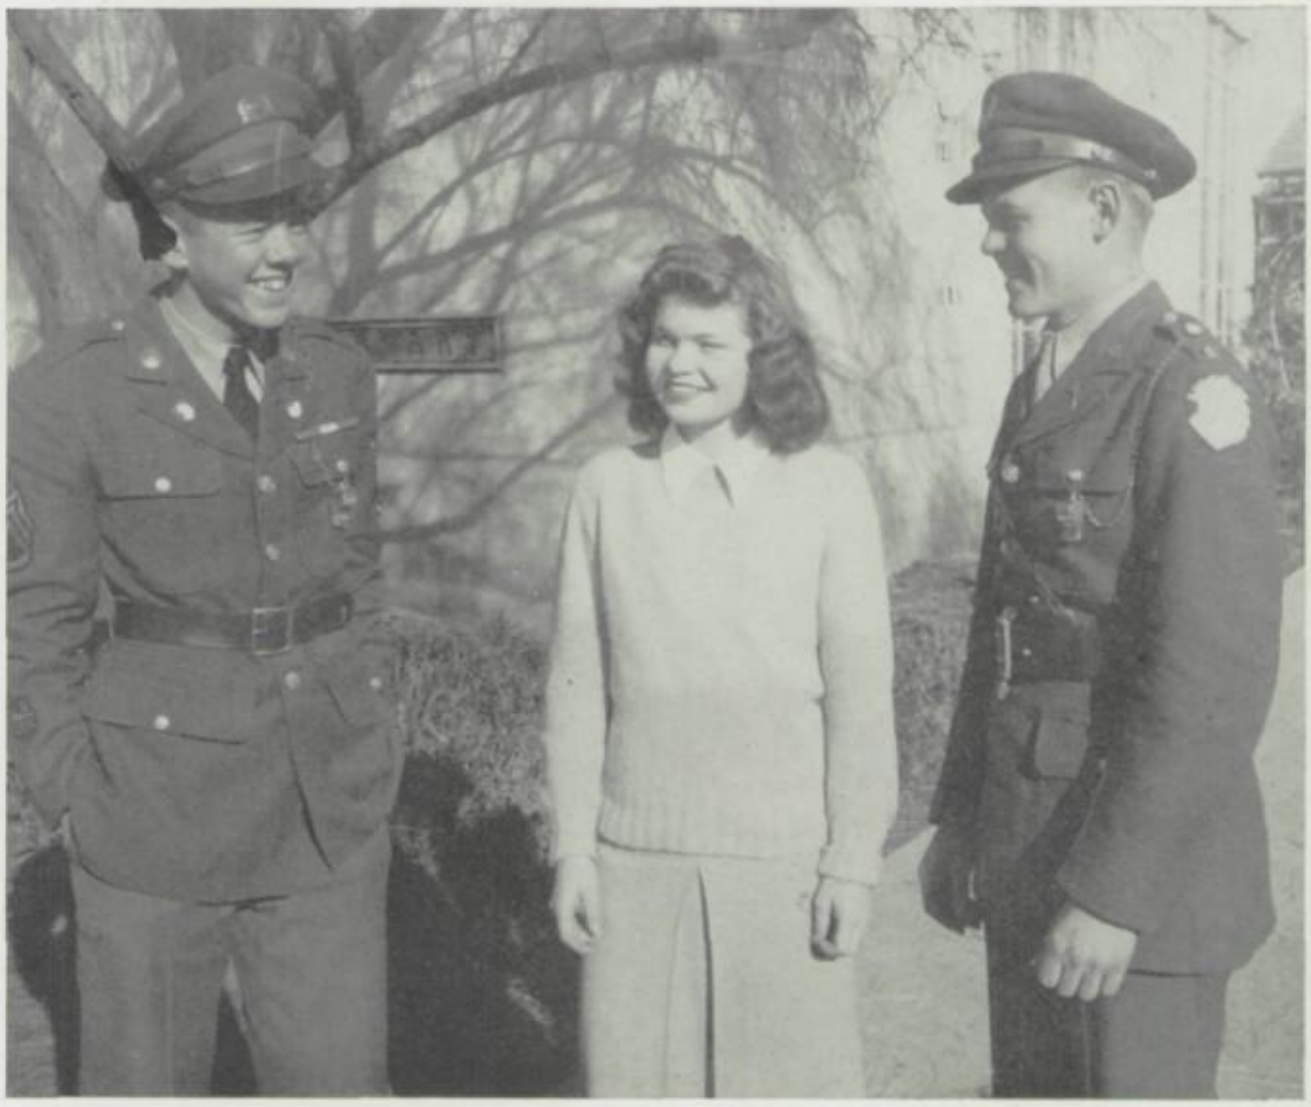
To Wally Broberg,

to all our classmates now in the services:



The Class of 1945 is thinking of you as we form the graduation procession — you and the many other boys who have, by completing your high school education in summer school, relinquished your places in this procession to take a place in another, one formed to serve your country, to strengthen the possibility of a peaceful future for your community and school.



Junior class officer, Grant Parsons, vice-president; Mary Louise Turner, secretary-treasurer; and Glen Short, president, predict a bright future for the class of 1946.

Juniors are important

in student activities

At this time the Junior Class is preparing to make its final step toward being the leaders of next year, of the future. Many things will be facing them, some important, some not. However, it will be up to them with co-operation of fellow students to make our school even more outstanding.

When many of the senior boys left school to join the various branches of the service, the juniors began to play a more dominant part in the school affairs and they took advantage of it.

In the past they have done a great job in collecting funds for the Mustang Corral. They have taken an active part in clothing drives, bond drives, and Red Cross work. They participated in making the junior-senior play as successful as it has been in the past

Many precedents are set by seniors each year, and the juniors are looking ahead with anticipation to next year, when they will be the ones to set the examples for the lowerclassmen who will follow their example to better the program of the school. The Junior class take off their hats to their leaders, Glen Short, president; Grant Parsons, vice-president; and Mary Louise Turner, secretary-treasurer, who have been responsible for much of the success of the junior class this year.

Students entertain crowds with an exhibition of their folk dancing ability between the halves of a fall football game. Under the direction of Mr. F. V. Brown, history teacher, noted for his proficiency as a caller, they practiced for weeks to perfect their squares. Later they appeared again as a special feature of the Girls' League Vaudeville.

Sophomore class president, Dick Pulis, lays down the law to secretary-treasurer, Jeanine Snow, and vice-president, Diane Pinkham, as they discuss what their class can do to promote the general welfare.

Freshmen and Sophomores were kept busy

These seemingly inexperienced underclassmen have produced some amazing accomplishments this year. The freshmen assisted the sophomores in sponsoring the Freshmen-Sophomore Hop, and during all drives they cooperated completely. Then they topped off a successful year with a long-to-be-remembered talent assembly.

Sophomores this year considered themselves very experienced after an entire year in high school. Their lengthy elucidations to the "green" freshmen concerning honor courts and classes ditched prove this.

Freshmen class vice-president, Ernest Soza; president, Max Dunlap; and secretary-treasurer, Susan Randolph, discuss plans for their successful talent assembly which gave every promise that the class of '48 will be one to remember in North High history.

Speakers had much to say

The subject for this year's Public Discussion Contest was "Youth and the New World of Tomorrow." The class winner from North High competed against the winners from Phoenix Union.

Only one North High student was chosen to compete in the finals, Diane Pinkham, sophomore girl representative. Other contestants were freshmen, Portia Call and LeRoy Kubby; sophomores, Diane Pinkham and Clark Hale; juniors, Mary Hannelly and Russell Orton; and senior, Virginia Stephens.

In the oratorical contest Fred Steiner, North High's winner, competed against Joel Leetham of Phoenix Union to come in second.

Our band is one of the best

Members of the band, seen at top, are on hand for all parades, football games and rallies. Highlight of their year is the rodeo. They have also been selected to play for a big bond rally in the 7th war loan.

Mr. Jesse Sedberry, out for most of the year because of illness, was replaced for most of the time by Mrs. William Vaughn.

Seen below are members of the Boys' Glee Club. They have appeared in several sacred assemblies and in the Winter Concert. They also have given performances outside of school on several occasions. Mr. F. V. Brown is director.

Music is fun for all

Accompanied by Jeanine Snow, the Girls' Glee Club made successful appearances in the Mid-Winter Concert and the Commencement exercises and presented a beautiful Christmas assembly.

This year's orchestra found the going tough, but came into the limelight during the Mid-Winter Concert and during several assemblies.

There's music in the air

The Girls' Glee Clubs are an important division of the music department at North High. In all musical events the girls take an active part, and the Christmas assembly is composed mainly of numbers given by them along with the Boys' Glee Club.

A great deal of practice and time is needed to obtain perfection in the difficult music which they perform, but somehow they manage to get in all the necessary practice along with their school work. Programs presented by the Girls' Glee Clubs are always looked forward to by parents and students alike.

This year, despite the illness and continued absence of Director Jesse Sedbury, the Girls' Glee Club can consider that their season was a successful one. Mrs. William Vaughan was an able substitute during most of the second semester.

Soldiers need training

The North Phoenix Regiment this year has been classed as one of the best in the history of the school. This year the regiment is made up of five companies A, B, C, D, and the girls' Co. E. The military year has been an exciting one, with Federal inspection and Military Night.

Col. Delmore S. Wood, our PMST at the beginning of the school year, was ordered out. But Major John H. Magee took charge of the Phoenix Union ROTC units to carry on the good work of Colonel Wood.

Throughout the history of North High's regiment the co-operation and willingness of the men and officers has been responsible for the good name our regiment has acquired for itself. ROTC trains to make our minds keen, quick to react, and to make better citizens. Many of us will go to war remembering what we learned in ROTC. It is the basic foundation of a good soldier.

Military Night

Climaxing a year of Military training is the annual Military Night for the schools of the Phoenix Union High Schools Brigade, including North Phoenix, Union and Carver Highs. By this competition is decided the outstanding company, platoon, squad, and exhibition drills, as well as the outstanding regiment. One year of hard work and worry is greatly rewarded by the wonderful and snappy presentation on Military Night.

Individuals may prove themselves outstanding, too. Medals are awarded by the American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary to the outstanding cadets and cadettes. It is indeed an honor to win one of these medals which go to the outstanding officers, non-commissioned officers, and privates as well.

The climax of the military year, is the night the shining cadets strut their stuff to win competition with Phoenix Union.

Every year the two schools prepare their best cadets to compete against each other on the annual Military Night. Judges are army officials in the Ninth Service Command, who decide which regiment is to be classed as the better. But whoever wins, Phoenix as a community is proud of the showing made by its youth.

In a sudden burst of activity are shown picture editors and photographers, Tarbell, Seeman, Harvey, Fisackerly, Backes, and Barrett, bottom, right.

We hope you like it

Hoofbeats, the annual of North High, requires much effort from student editors and photographers.

Under the direction of Editor Emma Louise Bennett the staff included: picture editors, Wyota Barrett, Fritzi Hoel, Nancy McKesson, and Vivian Tarbell; head photographer, Milton Harvey; photographic staff, Louis Bohn, Bob Fisackerly, Don Hoelzen, Lorraine Backes, and Marcelline Seeman; art work, Gene Cunningham; and cover, Don Adams. Business managers were Paul Reich and Gloria Aberwald.

"The Roundup comes out today"

The Mustang Roundup this year was awarded All American rating again for the third straight year by the National Scholastic Press Association.

John Driggs, first semester editor of The Roundup, was graduated at mid-year, and his fine work was carried on by the editorial board, of which Barbara Hyde served as chairman. Members were Emma Lou Bennett, Kay Allan Driggs, and Jean Pearson.

Junior editorial board members were Robert Hannelly, Nancy McKesson, Joe Lewis, Mary Sherrill, Bette Smith, and Bob Holland. Business managers were Gloria Aberwald and Karl Turner. Art staff members were Larry Benson, Douglas Cook, Gene Cunningham, Dave Manning, and Ben Pedrick, Photographers were Louis Bohn, Bob Fisackerly, Milton Harvey, and Don Hoelzen.

Clubs serve the community

Many clubs have been very helpful and active in community life and even more will prove important in the future. Students who learn cooperation and leadership today will be far better equipped to face the problems and worries of the world tomorrow.

It is also possible that some may go as far as finding their life's work in their favorite club, as the avocation of today often proves to be the vocation of tomorrow.

Clubs form a large part of a student's life on the campus. Now more than ever both teachers and parents are learning that they are very helpful in the molding of student character and because of this they have been encouraged greatly.

Espanlata

The Espanlata club is composed of beginning Latin and Spanish students interested in foreign language. This club is to acquaint students with both languages and to further their interest in languages.

Members of the club hold meetings twice a month and topics are discussed in both Latin and Spanish. The sponsor is Miss Eva S. Edwards.

Once a year an annual picnic is held usually in the latter part of the year.

M Club,

Radío Club

If a visiting team comes to North Phoenix, it is the duty of the M Club to escort this team until game time. Sponsor is Mr. Walter Wooden.

The Radio Club sponsored by Mr. Fredric Mitchell gives many boys a chance to work on something besides crystal sets and one-tube detectors. The experience gained especially in the field of shocks, burning out tubes, and melting condensors is amazing.

M CLUB. Back row: Oxley, Soule, Shumway, Patterson, Dale, Holland; first row: Mr. Wooden, Finch, Griswold, Driggs, Abbot, Short. RADIO CLUB. Howdy Pardners, Science Club

The members of Howdy Pardners have again completed another year of activity. Under the able supervision of Miss Miriam Gathings, they have done much to promote student fellowship.

Although they have turned out no successful substitute for rubber, Science Club members wish it known that they are still trying. Led by Mr. C. A. Brown, they intend to go on to bigger and better things in years to come.

Parnassus: Freshmen, Sophomores

With the rise of members of more than 20 per cent over last year's enrollment, the Parnassus Club got off to a fine start this year with 154 people meeting the traditional 14 grade points requirements for entrance.

Under the leadership of Miss Ruth Adams, sponsor; John Driggs, president first semester; Kay Allen Driggs, president second semester; Barbara Best, vice-president first semester; Fred Steiner, vice-president second semester; and Grace Hoggan, secretary-treasurer for the year, the club went far in accomplishing its aim.

Parnassus: Seniors, Juniors

Special awards are given Parnassus students in an assembly presented before the entire school. Small letters are awarded sophomores who have belonged three semesters, and large letters are given juniors for membership of five semesters. The names of seniors who have belonged six semesters are starred on the graduation programs, and special seals are placed on their diplomas.

Seniors who have belonged seven semesters are Wyota Barrett, Barbara Best, Jeanne Chartrand, Carol Feffer, Robert Hannelly, Grace Hoggan, Betty Parsons, and Wayne Reinhardt.

Those belonging six semesters are Earlene Barnard, John Driggs, Errol Hawley, Barbara Hyde, Virginia Hulse, Marilyn Levy, and Sue Peter.

Future Farmers, Hi-Y

One of the main purposes of the Hi-Y Club is to promote good fellowship in the school and community. Sponsored by Mr. Tom Inman, the club has formed many friendships between students.

Members of the North High Future Farmers of America, ably supervised by Mr. Fred Draper, are all out in their gardening program, as was shown by their purchase of a tractor.

ROTC Club,

Boxing Club

With the war on, the military boys have taken their training more seriously than ever. Under the supervision of Major J. A. McGee, Sergeant H. C. Reddic and Cadet Colonel Bill Bales, they have made much progress.

The regiment presents several parades during the school year, including the parade between halves of the Thanksgiving game, federal inspection, and Military Night. These are the three biggest events of the year.

The purpose of the Boxing Club is to promote interest in school activity. Mr. Dewey Marker is sponsor.

Officers first semester were Mary Koerner, imperator; Carolyn Parsons, legatus; Raymond Williams, scribe; and Jan Bragg, quaester; second semester—Betty Udell, imperator; Bill Mooney, legatus; Barbara Schilt, scribe; and Mary Louise Hicks, quaester.

The members of the Lettermen's Club are athletes who have earned their varsity letters. Officers are Widtsoe Shumway, president; Jack Holland, vice-president; Dave Mathieson, secretary-treasurer.

Auditorium, Stadium Club

The Auditorium Club has proved of great help during the past year. It is composed of sophomores, juniors, and seniors with better than average grades, with Mrs. Lu Rhodes Cloyd, sponsor.

Also of service to school and community is the Stadium Club. Under the direction of Mr. C. A. Brown, its members usher at football and basketball games. They also help keep score.

Fidelis Club is composed of girls who are interested in home-making. They believe that the fastest way to a man's heart is through his stomach. During the school year the club has parties and other social outings. Mrs. Gwendolyn Beaver and Mrs. Anna Lou Yancy are sponsors of the club.

Girl Reserves is a national club officiated with the YWCA. The group has many social activities, as well as being interested in Red Cross work. Miss Catherine Eastburn and Mrs. Bettse Phelps are sponsors.

The sale of poinsettias at Christmas for money to buy books was the chief activity of the Library Club sponsored by Mrs. Reddic and Miss Carlton. They also held a drive for the Merchant Marine library. Officers are Willie Ashcraft, president; Wyota Barrett, vice-president; and Ina Gartside, secretary-treasurer.

The French Club sponsored by Mrs. Cloyd held meetings each month, which included the singing and playing of French songs and games and presentation of skits. Their chief other activity was the presentation of the French assembly under the direction of student committees. Servicemen and women

Former students home on leave often return to look over the campus and wistfully remark that they would like to be going to the old school again.

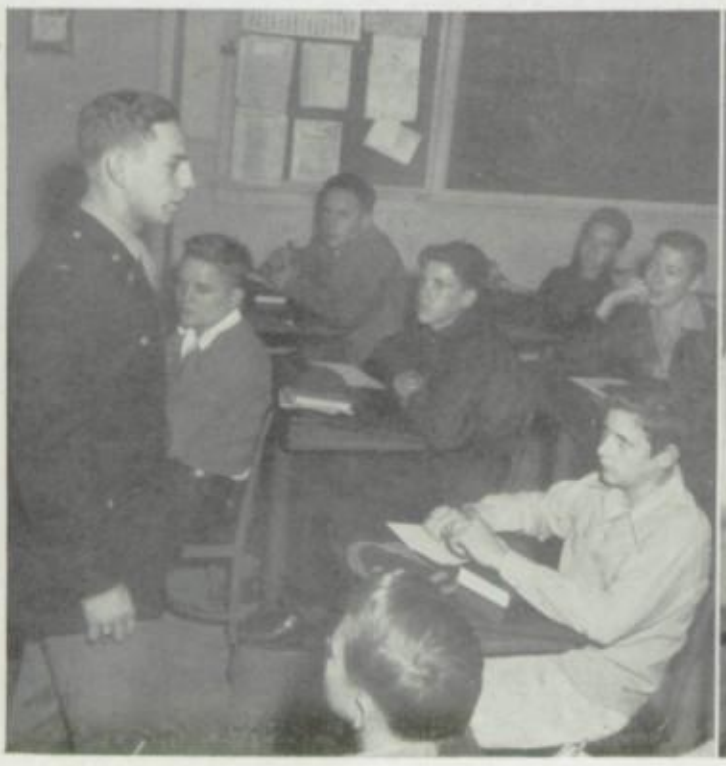
A chance to mingle with old classmates, and reminisce about good times shared is always anticipated by servicemen on leave. They criticize new school policies, approve of the new freshmen girls, read The Roundup, review their exploits to an ever-interested student body, and enjoy themselves thoroughly.

Home on leave



The Blue and Silver Ball

Blue and Silver Ball! The annual dance held by the Girls' League was a good example of how the youth of today shows its ability to manage a successful affair. A false ceiling of blue and white crepe paper sprinkled with silver stars glittered over a capacity crowd of more than 500 girls and their dates.

The social event of the year

Refreshments served in the candle-lit rooms behind the gym added that special touch. During intermission a program consisting of songs and dances made the evening complete, with dancing to the music of Bert LaMar's orchestra.

Top, a merry group of upperclassmen decide that this year's ball is a decided success. Right, Sand and Short show why they won the prize waltz.

All school dances are not affected by the shortage of available males. Each year the Girls' League sponsors a co-ed dance which only girls are able to attend.

The theme for this year's dance was rural life. Dressed in levis and pinafores, the girls did folk dancing and posed for incredible pictures.

Co-eds become farmerettes

Sport dances were many

In addition to the special formal balls, there are many sport dances held in the gym throughout the year. Most of them are held after football or basketball games and based on some theme such as St. Patrick's Day.

Being both stag and date affairs, sport dances were an important part of the social life of North High and provided enjoyment to all who attended them.

The lights are low, the music's soft

Long dresses and uniforms, gold braid and Sam Browns, medals and gardenias and soft music . . . The annual Military Balls are the occasion for the appearance of all the glamor trappings owned by both beau and belle. Joint affairs of North High and Phoenix Union, they are the big social affairs of the year.

The Military Ball

Military Balls have become looked forward to school affairs. From the time school starts until the fall ball is over, it is all talked about and planned for. Students then proceed to get their dates for the spring dance sponsored by North High. The two dances are sponsored semi-annually by Phoenix Union in the fall and North High in the spring.

The Mustang Corral

Dedication ceremony at the grill, weeding contests, and homeroom and club parties were but a few of the good times had at the Corral this year. Widtsoe Shumway, student body president, actively carried on the good work.

At the beginning of school, the seniors won the weeding contest showing their active interest in the Corral. The prize for winning the contest was the honor of having the first party on the Grill, which turned out to be a bang-up affair.

The senior party (top) looks rowdier than it was. That is not Miss Stevens' arm around Terry, she says. In the lower picture Yvonne Mayfield, Garth Nelson, and Barbara Best witness the mutually congratulatory handshaking of Widstoe Shumway and Harold Witchey.

Eating can be a lot of fun

Eating takes time, even in as well regulated a cafeteria as ours. Space limitations led to putting before the voters this spring a bond issue for, among other things, an enlargement of the cafeteria.

When the bell rings for lunch, students do not hesitate, to say the least, in responding. Lunch time means time to be spent with friends, a chance to promote that week-end project or plan that date. It's a time for sitting together in little groups to eat sandwiches or to occupy that particular corner in the cafeteria where friends congregate.

Boys at a certain age stick together, as above, but it won't be for long. Distributing The Roundup gives journalism students a chance to meet their public (left).

The Flag Raising

Each year, the Military Department organizes and presents a flag raising ceremony that is always memorable.

On the opposite page, the entire student body is shown spread out over the square between campus buildings. Other pictures record the stages of the rite.

Silent night, holy night,
All is calm, all is bright

Assemblies this year have brought an amazing variety of entertainment and inspiration to North Phoenix with one of the most memorable the Christmas assembly presented by the music department. Here is shown the Girls' Glee Club with Jeanine Snow, accompanist.

Assemblies are fun

Students who participated in assemblies gained experience in appearing before audiences. Also guest artists offer their talents in many assemblies throughout the year.

Fads and faces

A community is a collection of individuals, which means that it is made up of people with peculiarities. Students are no exception. In fact, they glory in finding ways to stand out from the crowd.

Because they're surprising and always changing, students and their fads are always fascinating

Pat Nicholson, Doug Harrison, and Bob Holland as student types pose before the camera. Below, fads like these were at their height this year. Moccasins covered with silver buttons go well with an armload of silver Indian jewelry, and bow ties matching your "steady's" are all the rage when worn with dirty saddles or loafers without bobby socks.

The laboratory gives us skills

Science teachers are finding more than ever before that the work they are doing is important to the youth and his community.

North High offers general science and physiography, giving us a firm background of scientific knowledge, with biology, chemistry, and physics as the advanced sciences.

In the upper picture, Mrs. Elsie Chason is shown instructing her biology students in the use of the microscope. In the lower picture, Mrs. Chason is showing a tarantula to three of her biology students, Brunk, Dixon, and Cheney.

To understand a people's language is to know them better. Therefore, the first requirement toward reaching complete unity with our allies is to know their language. The promotion of this better understanding is the job of the foreign language teachers of North High.

Besides teaching their students Latin, French, and Spanish, they also find time to sponsor outside foreign language clubs.

North High and Phoenix Union both have charters in the Student Pan-American League and carry on an active program. Mr. A. F. Olney, Curriculum Co-ordinator of Phoenix Secondary Schools is the local representative of the project.

Each culture has worth for others

The arts of living

Under the guidance and supervision of the competent English instructors of North Phoenix High School students have learned to enjoy both early and modern literature, as well as recognize the English fundamentals and proper grammatical constructions.

Home-making students, upper left, busy themselves with preparation of a good meal. Miss Pothoff, school nurse, superintends the checking of Pat Nicholson's pulse by Audrey McGowan. Below, Miss Stevens expounds, as only she can, on the immortal beauties of English poetry—or is that a grammar lesson on the board?

History in action

From history, youth gains a sense of the past from which he comes and a feeling of direction toward the future in which he will live.

Youth at North High has through study of Dumbarton Oaks and the San Francisco Conference had a feeling of real participation in the making as well as the study of history.

Miss Marion Cox's board of experts baffles the class with answers on questions dealing with American literature.

The elements and intricacies of world history form the lecture of Mr. F. V. Brown, top, while Mrs. Fleda Kinneman watches over her freshman English class as they work industriously. Miss Eastburn's public speaking students, right, listen to John Vincent.

Literature enriches life

Only through a broad survey of the literature produced by the English-speaking peoples and the rest of the world can the young gain a knowledge of the best that has been thought and said.

From there, each one is on his own, free to explore the rich countries of the mind.

The commercial department is one of our most useful departments. Knowledge of shorthand and typing is useful, whether one continues school or commences a career. Although courses are difficult, the pupils enjoy themselves because they know they are learning something they will use. Typing and shorthand will help these future businessmen and women to become more successful.

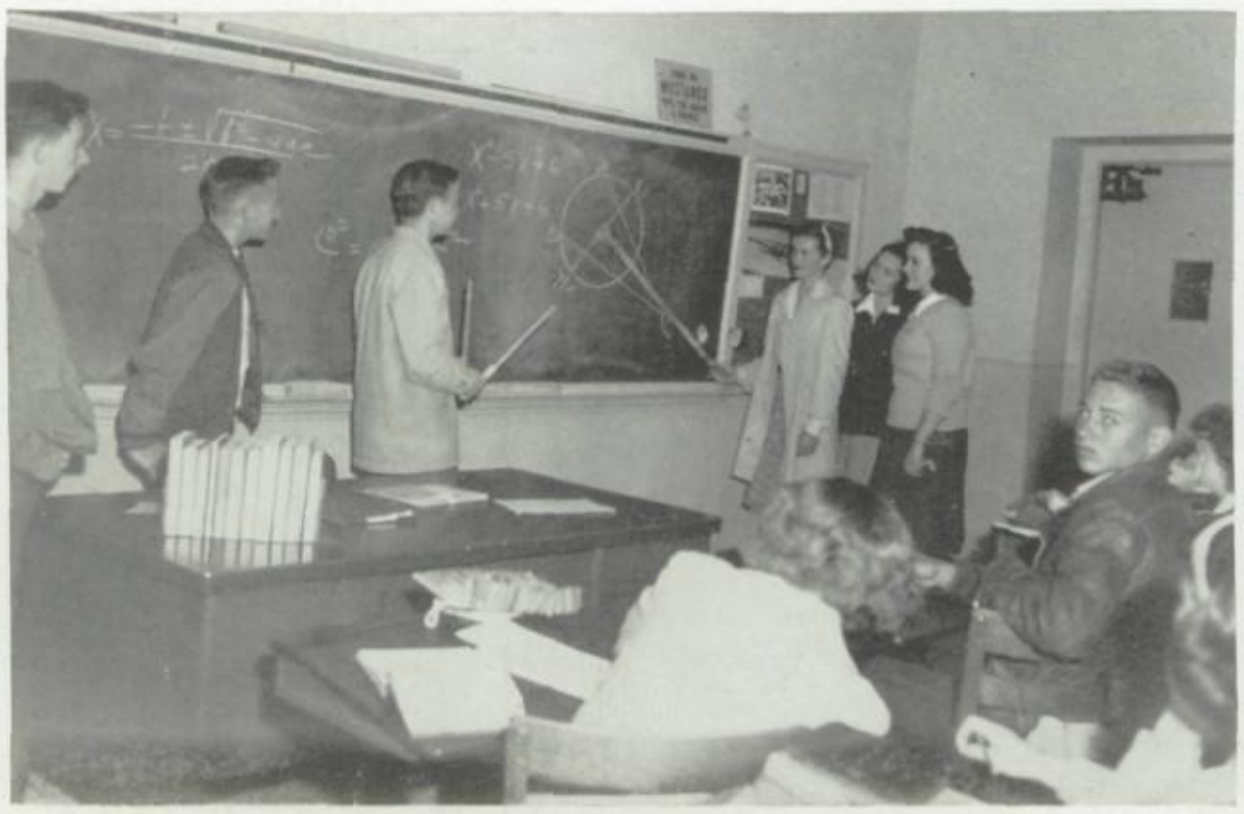
Commerce makes the wheels go 'round

Knowledge is mighty handy

Agriculture as well as math and science goes to form the corner stones of a well-rounded high school education. Although we may not remember everything we found between the covers of our textbooks, still, as the years go by, there will be a lot which we will understand better because we heard (if only remotely) about it in school.

Giving the radishes a sunning (upper, left) is Duane Miller, while (upper, right) Mrs. Smith inspects the spinach and radishes from the F.F.A. farm. Bill Johnson and Marty Humphrey (middle) are showing the ag. class the principles of the Babcock milk test. Students (below) work problems on board in geometry class.

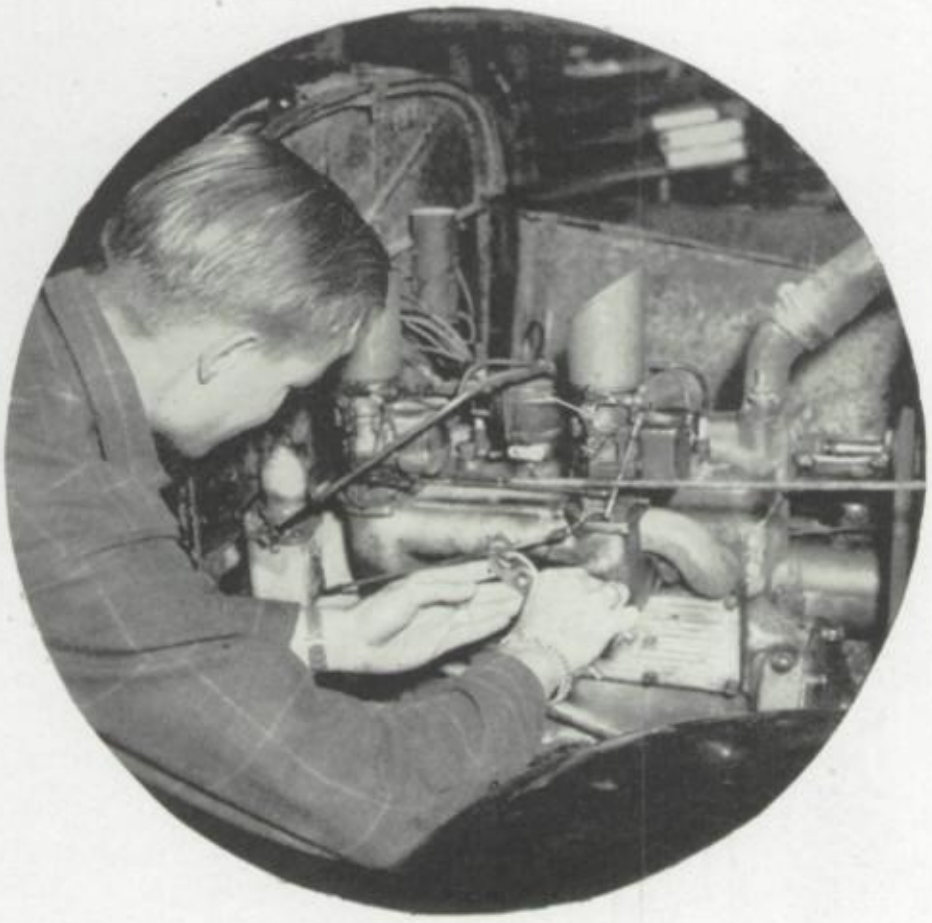


Art is part of daily life

For the future artists of our community, the arts department holds much in store. They learn to design fabrics, fashions, posters, and many other articles for various contests.

After the students have completed their course in high school, they find that they have also the basic fundamentals needed for college entrance.

The art department is seen putting up ads in the auditorium for the vaudeville show held in the fall, lower left. Lower right out sketching in the sun are Camille King and Pat Parker. Joan Burian is sketching in the art room, upper right.



Even though one's future occupation may have nothing to do with the knowledge gained in industrial arts, this subject may prove very useful. Is there anyone who has never had the urge to take a piece of machinery in the house apart to fix it? Of course, if he plans to follow occupations in this line, industrial arts training means even more.

Industrial Arts mean skilled workers

Before the season starts

Football is a big word to the boys that give up good paying jobs to gather on the first of September with the coaches and the other fellows to begin practice of one of America's favorite sports. For ten days before school starts, the boys come for two practices a day.

Football means fight

The North High Mustangs started the season with some tough breaks that netted losses in the first four games. The season opener with St. Mary's was dropped to the crosstown rivals, who won 25-13. The next week, the Mesa Jackrabbits won 12-0, and the following Saturday the Glendale Cardinals came over to beat the home team, 26-0.

On Friday, October 13, the Mustangs took their first trip of the season to Tucson, where the much favored Badgers won 34-13.

We won this game

In the game with the Badgers the Mustangs began to pull the team together and were in full strength the following week to defeat the Bowie Bears, 19-0. The next week-end in the jaunt against the El Paso Tigers, the Mustangs kicked off and recovered the ball to make the first touchdown; Holland and Meloche also scored in the first period.

Later in the game Holland scored again to net up 27 points to the Tigers' 14, bringing the Mustangs home victorious in both games played with El Paso teams.

Elzie Pearson, top, runs interference for Jack Holland on an end sweep. Lower left, Hammon and Halladay run interference for a ball carrier that is "out of the picture." Lower right, a charging Mustang hits a Yuma Criminal so hard that he jars the ball loose from his tight grip. Halladay is coming in to help also.

On Armistice Day

On Armistice Day the Mustangs made it three wins in a row by swamping the Yuma Criminals, 73-6. The first string started the game with Elzie Pierson scoring the first touchdown on a crossbuck. A pass from Jack Holland to Sonny Dale made it two.

Jack Holland made the third, totaling 20-0 at the close of the first quarter, after which Coach Caldwell sent in a complete new team, which netted up eight touchdowns to finish the game, 73-6, the greatest score ever summed up by the Mustang teams.

Turkey Day brought victory

Thanksgiving found the crosstown rivals favored five to three. The kickoff was at 2:30 with the eager Mustangs receiving the ball on the 20-yard line and running it up to the Coyotes 32-yard line, where Jumping Jack Holland took it over for pay dirt after two long dashes up the field.

On the first play after the kickoff, Jack Holland again went over for pay dirt on an end sweep, making it 12-0, Holland being the only one on the Mustang team to score against the Coyotes in the last two years. He was captain of the Mustang squad and end; Sonny Dale was co-captain.

Practice makes perfect

The following week the Mustangs set the Nogales Apaches in a game played on a rain soaked field on Saturday afternoon. It was hot and sloppy and the opposing team could do nothing against the hard hitting Mustangs, who scored 45 points made by Jack Holland, Walter Holladay, Widtsoe Shumway, and Elzie Pierson, Holland scoring twice and the Apaches nothing.

The Mustangs continued their improved style of playing to batter the Phoenix Union Coyotes all over the field, to come out on top, 12-0, although the statistical game was much more in the Mustangs favor, as they outgained the Coyotes more than 200 yards.

Probably the outstanding player of the 1944 team was lineman Bob Holland. He was considered by many the hardest charging and the roughest guard in the state. Also outstanding were center Jim Savage, end Sonny Dale, and tackle Vin Ciruzzi. The backfield was led by Jack Holland, who was very ably assisted by Slammin' Stanley Rowley and big Elzie Pierson. Widtsoe Shumway recovered from his injuries enough to come out for the last couple of games and stamped himself as a real threat, causing many to dream of what he could have done if he hadn't suffered his injuries and missed almost two years of experience.

The Colts gain experience

The North Phoenix Colts, as usual, didn't have a very successful season, winning only two games. They had many close games, however, losing to the Chandler varsity by scores of only 12-0 and 7-6.

Many of the boys on the second team showed great possibilities. Among them were Max Dunlap, Fred Romley, Fred Olsson, Robert Olson, Bill Crockett, Dick Troxel, and Joe Jones.

Coach Schade really knows his football and did a good job of teaching the fundamentals of the game, which is after all the sole purpose of having second teams.

Basketball is a game for all

Hopes were bright at the beginning of basketball practice. The Wild Horses whittled the ears of the Tolleson Wolverines to the tune of a 65-13 score and then scored consecutive victories over Tempe and St. Mary's before falling to the Tucson Badgers, 29-19. The Horses defeated the Phoenix Coyotes, 28-25; Glendale, 34-29; and Tolleson, 37-21; before falling before the Mesa Jackrabbits, 29-33.

Defeating Wickenburg, Peoria, Tempe, in that order, the Mustangs faltered and lost to the Coyotes, 25-32, to even up the series. The Mustangs were determined to win against Tucson, but couldn't quite make it, losing, 37-39. They continued their slump, losing to Glendale and Mesa, before defeating the Peoria Panthers, 44-28, and Wickenburg, 34-33.

North High drew in the lower bracket in the West Central District Tournament and defeated Peoria, 61-30; Litchfield, 55-32; Tolleson, 55-17, and in the finals bested the Glendale Cards, 33-31. The Wild Horses went down to the old Phoenix Union gym to lose a hotly contested overtime game to the St. Mary's Knights, 35-37.

Leroy Shaw goes up into the stratosphere to bat the ball to teammate Fred Olsson (9) in a game with Tolleson.

A big season

In the state tournament the Horses started out against Bisbee, a team that almost upset them. The next night the Mustangs defeated the favorites, the Jackrabbits, 32-30, and proceeded to meet and defeat the Coyotes, thus gaining an edge in the series.

Almost completely exhausted the Horses met the Tucson Badgers in the finals and came out on the short end, missing victory by two points, 40-39.

The Mustangs however showed up all of the other teams by placing two men on the Arizona all-state, Widtsoe Shumway at center and Bob Norris at one of the forward spots.

Norris led the team in scoring with 274 points in 26 games. He was followed by Holland with 176 and Shumway with 154.

Tournament play is fast

At the West Central District tournament, held to determine which teams go to the State meet, the Mustangs were drawn in the lower bracket and in their first game they walloped Peoria 61-30. Next in line was Litchfield, who fell, 55-32; Tolleson was no match and went down, 55-17.

The final game of the tournament was with Glendale, favored team who was downed, 30-28, in a hard fought game. We won the district crown for the first time.

The Mustangs met Bisbee in their first game of the State tournament and turned them back, 35-29, and then took the measure of the favored Mesa Jackrabbits, 32-30. The semi-finals put the Coyotes against the Scarlet and Blue and they went down, 33-30. The final game was with Tucson, to which the Mustangs lost a heart breaking game, 40-39, for the State championship.

A scene from the sports dance held after one of the Coyote-Mustang clashes, not the only time you will find members of the two schools fraternizing with each other.

The Colts succeed

The Colts under Coach Don Pace had another successful season, winning 14 while losing only five, twice to Phoenix Union, twice to Peoria and once to the Indian School.

Leading scorers on the Colts were Bob Charles, 112; Jimmy Karam, 101; Vaughn, 79; McDowell, 73, and Gordon Sims, 71, and Fuller and Abalos, 69 and 68 respectively. The Colts outscored their opponents, 731-488, in the season's play.

A sport for individualists

Much of the strength of this year's team was found in the returning members of the previous year's team. Some of the most prominent were Jack Holland, dash, shot, broad jump and hurdles; Fred Olsson, 880, high hurdles; Bob Toncray, high jump, pole vault, hurdles; Buck Huff, pole vault; Merlin Abbot and Gordon Cook, dash; and Merlin Thevenote, high jump.

Baseball and Tennis

The baseball team had a partially successful season, losing five games, two to the Coyotes, two to the Badgers, and one to the Jackrabbits.

The team was led on the mound by Widtsoe Shumway, considered the best prep pitcher in the West Central Conference; Buck Huff, who developed into the slugger of the team; and Leroy Whitecraft, who spent most of his time at first base. Probably the best all around player on the team was Herb Boetto, who played errorless ball almost continually and took a turn as catcher in the last game of the season.

The tennis team had a good record this year, losing matches only to Tucson and Yuma. They were led by Bobby Charles, who worked himself up to the first singles post and who won the consolation title in the University Week tennis tournament. Others who stamped themselves as the hard to beat kind were Cecil Miller, Harry Montgomery, Fred Steiner, and Russell Rogers.

Tennis is a favorite sport

Starting the season off with wins over Tempe, Mesa, and Yuma, the girls' tennis team continued the season in good style. The big events were University Week, held May 4 and 5, and the trip made to Yuma April 21, with North High as victors.

Captain this year was Marilyn Downs; tennis manager was Terry Smith. Marilyn Downs was chosen this year as outstanding tennis player, with Audrey Toncray and Carolyn Wilkinson next in line.

Next year's forecast for the season is bright, since all but two girls will return to play on the varsity.

In the six years of tennis matches played, North High has received a high rating among Arizona schools, winning an average of 90 per cent each season.

Jumping high to make a basket are Sally Sanders and Barbara Rice, as they take part in the healthful exercise that is daily routine in physical education classes.

Girls learn skills, too

Out of the 150 members of GAA, twenty-two complied with the rules to become "All Stars." There are six sports of the season, basketball, baseball, volleyball, softball, and tumbling in which the girls must participate.

The awards given to the girls at the end of the season are the small and large letters and the silver and gold pins.

This year Melba Edgin was chosen the outstanding athlete who received the gold pin. Melba has 24 sports to her credit; 14 of these are with "All Star" records. She has been both president and vice-president of the Girls' Athletic Association.

This year officers of the GAA are president, Melba Edgin; vice-president, Marilyn Downs; secretary, Virginia Stephens; treasurer, Delores Low; and social chairman, Barbara Rice.

Managers of the different sports are Olive Grasham, volleyball; Shirley Schmitz, softball; Patty Bragg, basketball; Fern Miller, speedball; Yvonne Mayfield, tumbling; and Jeanne Chartrand, publicity chairman.

Sports Day was held at Mesa with eight Arizona schools attending to compete in volleyball. North High girls took third place in the contest. A basketball Sports Day was held at Phoenix Union, which six schools attended. The girls again took third place in the games played.
